'Hats Off' to the Folks Of Moab

From the utilitarian to the ceremonial and commemorative, hats serve many purposes, and in the case of southeastern Utah, as elsewhere, they reflect a bit about our history. The museum's newest exhibit highlights the headgear worn by Moab area residents throughout the years, highlighting events and phases in the region's history.

Wikipedia defines a HAT – "a head covering which is worn for various reasons, including protection against weather conditions, ceremonial reasons such as graduations, religious reasons, safety, or as a fashion accessory"

Outside of our new exhibit, scattered around the museum are several other hats, mostly worn for sun and outdoor protection.

Next time you visit the museum, see if you can find the crown for the "Uranium Days" yearly beauty competition! It is definitely NOT what you would think!

Our August artist is Dave Manley, who brings his rock art photography to the Fran and Terby Barnes Gallery.

The Museum of Moab is the Moab Valley's center for cultural and natural history of eastern Utah and the Moab area. The exhibits include everything from a Jurassic dinosaur found just south of town to archaeological artifacts to tools and historical artifacts from pioneer settlement to mining equipment and geologist Charlie Steen's bronzed boots commemorating the day in 1952 that he found the Mi Vida mine deposit.

So stop on in, see what else is new. If you've not visited us yet, come and check out the Museum of Moab at 118 East Center Street!
